Bethel Station delays:

Developers now seek tax help from town

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The developers of Bethel Station are now asking the town for tax help in underwriting the cost of project infrastructure.

The Bethel selectmen have agreed to study the idea and to put it before voters, but they told developer Hemic Merrill it would be a hard sell.

The request is the result of delays in the federal grant process. The developers were counting on using the proceeds of a $1.5 million federal grant to begin the infrastructure work to support the project.

The money was initially expected to be available as early as this year, according to Town Manager Madeleine Henley, but delays in the federal approval process have pushed the availability date back to late 1995.

The project is still in a solid position to receive the federal money, Henley said, but if the money is not available until late next year, and the infrastructure work must be delayed, then the initial Phase One buildings will be held up still further, and the town would lose tax revenues.

Merrill is asking the town to consider $340,000 in "Tax Increment Financing" (TIF) to help underwrite the infrastructure work -- specifically the utilities along the parkway ($210,000) and electrical service along Cross Street ($130,000).

TIF has been used in many Maine municipalities to underwrite economic development projects.

A TIF can take a number of forms. As proposed at Monday's selectmen's meeting, a Bethel Station TIF would work as follows:

The town would not put in any money, but would agree to return to the developers 29 percent of the property tax revenues generated by new Bethel Station development, for a period of five years.

The developers would use that agreement as collateral for a $340,000 bank loan, which would be used for the infrastructure work, making it possible for the Phase One buildings to be constructed without waiting for the federal grant money.

The infrastructure work would belong to the town. If the project fails the town would have no financial exposure.

Further, for the five year TIF period the state would not include the increased Bethel Station valuation in the town's total valuation -- consequently the town would not lose state educational funding.

Backstage music gets 9-month OK

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel Board of Selectmen has renewed the entertainment license for the Backstage Restaurant, but for nine months rather than the usual year.

The board also indicated that a further extension of the permit would be contingent on restaurant owner Harry Faulkner and neighbor Jan Baker making some progress toward a resolution of their longstanding dispute over weekend noise from the establishment.

Noise outside the restaurant was the subject of a heated discussion at a selectmen's meeting in September.

Baker complained that on summer weekends her family was kept awake at night by noise from the restaurant.

Faulkner countered by characterizing Baker as a chronic complainer, and the only one of the restaurant's current neighbors who found the noise objectionable.

In a letter to the selectmen the following month, Pat Donovan, a former next-door neighbor of the restaurant, seconded Baker's complaints. "The way we coped best with the noise was to go away as often as possible on the weekends," Donovan wrote.

Since the September meeting, the Bethel Police Department has monitored noise at the restaurant, and Police Chief Dale Bellman volunteered to attempt to mediate a solution between the two parties.

Baker did not attend Monday's meeting. "Frankly, I choose not to be shouted at by Mr. Faulkner again," she wrote to the board. "I am still concerned about the noise, but I am hopeful that, for the present time, cold weather will keep doors and windows shut."

Faulkner did attend, and he repeatedly complained that the town's noise-level restrictions for entertainment licenses were unworkable.

"I've tried everything I can to meet Mrs. Baker's objections," Faulkner said. "I just don't know what else I can do."

RICHARDSON HOLLOW ROAD FIRE--Not much remains of the Rosa Timms property in Greenwood following a wind-driven fire Thursday. Fire levels Greenwood house and barn

By WENDY HANSKOM

High winds fanned a blaze Wednesday that destroyed a vacant Richardson Hollow Road farm in Greenwood. Wind gusts also sent fireballs into nearby woods.

When firefighters from Greenwood, Woodstock and West Paris arrived at the Rosa Timms property, the building's large barn and adjacent shed were already gone, according to Greenwood Fire Chief Ray Seames.

"When we got here the barn and shed were burned flat and it was into the house," Seames said Thursday morning, while firemen were still mopping up after the late afternoon fire.

Strong winds swept flames away from the structure and blew large embers into the woods.

"If we hadn't had the rain Wednesday, we'd have been fighting forest fires all over the place," Seames said. "The fire was blowing in every direction. The wind was unbelievable. It was blowing so hard while we were setting up our drop tank (a portable water reservoir) that it blew across the road into the trees."

Firefighters poured about 50,000 gallons of water on the blaze, the chief said. Water was initially pumped from the Little Androscoggin, but later hauled from a hydrant at Penley's Mill in West Paris, about a mile from the scene.

Check those smoke alarms now

By WENDY HANSKOM

Recent high winds are a not-so-gentle reminder that winter storms may be just a few weeks away, and along with snow and cold weather comes the increased danger of house fires, according to local fire chiefs.

The improper use of woodstoves and other heaters is a leading cause of winter fires, the chiefs said.

"People should clean their chimneys, check them regularly, burn dry wood and make sure there's nothing around the stove -- no clutter," said Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young. "There's also the danger of electrical outlets overloaded by heaters."

Greenwood Fire Chief Ray Seames said homeowners should conduct a quick check of their heating equipment.

"Hopefully they'll go over their chimneys and stoves and make sure they're properly installed," Seames said. "Burning wood properly is important. One of the things we see all the time is people who have installed stoves too big for what they need to heat their structure. Then they build small smoldering fires that create a lot of creosote. They should burn hot and clean."

Fall is also a good time to check the batteries in your smoke detector, Seames said.

"There's nothing more important than a smoke detector," Seames said. "It allows you time to get out. We had a fire last year where the smoke detector had no battery in it. Someone happened to wake up, and everybody got out OK, but it's a dangerous practice. People take them out for use elsewhere or because they went off accidentally."

Homeowners should make sure their detectors are not installed in "dead air space," he said. Most detectors come with instructions on the best place to put them, the chief said.

Young also wanted to remind local residents that they should now dial 911 in an emergency.

New stickers are being printed, he said, and Bethel fire fighters will distribute them door-to-door in the next few weeks.

New faces in the Only Place

By WENDY HANSKOM

After 15 years at the Only Place, Gloria Lewis and Lauretta Varo say it's time to move on.

The restaurant has been leased to two West Bethel businessmen, and will reopen it soon with a new name and expanded facilities.

On Nov. 26, Nina Wheeler and Sandy Pond will reopen the building as a restaurant and recreational center.

An addition to the building is already under construction. The 25-by-30-foot room will house a few pool tables, arcade games and some tables for cards or other games, Wheeler said.

Pond and Wheeler will continue to serve pizza, subs, wine and beer, along with daily specials, Pond said.

The pair eventually hope to buy the property and build a bowling alley adjacent to the building.

Wheeler said she hopes the recreational center will give young people a safe, fun place to hang out.

"I believe young people need a chance," Wheeler said. "If you give them a chance, they'll do good by it."

Wheeler and Pond had wanted to build a bowling alley on a West Bethel lot, but had problems with financing, Wheeler said.

The pair then tried to get a permit for a pool hall and arcade at an apartment building at the corner of the Flat Road and Route 26 in West Bethel. But when neighbors of the project objected at a Bethel Planning Board public hearing, the pair dropped the plan.

A successful 15 years

Lewis and Varo said after working in food service business since they were teenagers, they're looking for new vocations.

"I won't miss the work -- seven days a week," Lewis said. "I will miss the social aspect of it. We've had so many different types of

Newry drug roadblock yields little

By WENDY HANSKOM

In response to a tip that drugs were being brought into the Sunday River valley on a regular basis, State Police set up an early morning roadblock Thursday on the Sunday River Road.

Police issued two summons for possession of drug paraphernalia, and a Bryant Pond man was arrested on an outstanding warrant, but no large amounts of any drug were confiscated from passing drivers. A small amount of marijuana was found alongside the road after the roadblock, according to police.

"We had received information that there were a lot of drugs being brought into the area on a steady basis," said Trooper Michael Kasperen. "The information was that it was definitely being brought up that road at certain times of day, by certain individuals. It was a specific target area. It wasn't a shot-in-the-dark type of thing."

Kasperen refused to reveal the source of the tip, or where the informant said the drugs were going.

This type of roadblock is rare, he said.

"Nobody requested us to do it," the trooper said. "We had information and acted on it. We don't just go to a section of road and check for drugs coming in. We do hold road safety checks. That's quite common."

A state police "drug sniffing" dog was also at the scene, along with three other troopers and a Maine Drug Enforcement Agency agent. Cars were stopped for about an hour from 6 to 7 a.m.

"Most of the people coming through seemed aware that (drugs) were being brought into the area and they were thanking us for being there. They were saying 'That's good. There's a lot of stuff being brought in up here.' There was no outward show of force or intimidation. It was just us in our uniforms and that's as intimidating as it got."

Two men were issued summons for possession of drug paraphernalia, Kasperen said, and Albert Hopkins, 46, of Bryant Pond was arrested on an outstanding warrant for failure to pay a fine.

"We also found some marijuana on the side of the road after the detail was over," the trooper said. "It was a small amount. Three or four cars get backed up, people get itchy, see the police dog, and sometimes throw anything they have out the window. We expect that."

Kasperen said he wasn't sure if any of the other troopers at the scene found any more marijuana thrown out along the Sunday River Road.

Police have no current plans to set up another road block along the Sunday River Road, he said, unless they have further information that might lead to drug-related arrests.

Veterans Day parade in Locke Mills

GREENWOOD--The annual Veterans Day parade in Locke Mills will step off at 9 a.m., Nov. 11 from the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post on the Gore Road. The parade will proceed along the Gore Road to Route 26 and then along Route 26 to the town's war memorial. Delma McMillan, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Bethel will be the guest speaker. Marchers will re-form and parade back to the Legion hall. A second ceremony will be held at the hall.

DEP to pay for test wells

ANDOVER--Maine's Department of Environmental Protection will pay for the first test borings on Andover's proposed artesian wells, according to the town's water system director. Under the federal Safe Drinking Water Act, the district must abandon the open Stoney Brook reservoir, which has been in operation since 1910. The firm of Emery & Garrett Groundwater, Inc. of Waterville has requested the test borings to determine if there is any underground petroleum contamination along Andover's Main Street. Borings will be made on the 37-acre Grimaldi property, which the town has an option on.

Greenwood subdivision approved

GREENWOOD--The Planning Board here gave final approval Monday night to a nine-lot subdivision on the Rowe Hill Road. Ron Savage of Bryant Pond plans for his Oak Tree Estates to include a private road and restrictive covenants for the development. Savage agreed to let town Code Enforcement Officer Norm Putnam oversee the construction of the private road.

Stow says no to Post Office

STOW--Voters here have decided against putting a permanent postal station in the Town Office, because they don't want to pay part of the cost. The town has had a temporary postal station in the Town Office building since August, when the North Fryeburg Postmaster retired and the North Fryeburg Post Office closed. The town allowed 60 days for a temporary postal station, but voted recently that the Postal Service should cover all costs of a post office. The Postal Service asked the town to pay for a shed roof and lights over the mailbox, snow removal and other possible expenses.

Driver hurt in Route 2 accident

RUMFORD--A Missouri man was hospitalized for treatment of head lacerations following an accident here near McDonald's on Route 2. The man's Jeep Cherokee hydroplaned during a torrential downpour, Wednesday, Nov. 2. As he tried to regain control of the sliding vehicle, a State Cable TV Corp utility truck slammed into the back of the Jeep, according to Rumford Police.

Vt. hunters get lost in Franklin County

MERRILL STRIP--Two Vermont hunters were found in good condition last Wednesday, after being missing two days. A man and his son hunting in Merrill Strip became separated from a third hunter Monday, Oct. 31. The group of hunters had agreed not to file a missing hunter report if any of them failed to return to camp at dark. The lost hunters were not reported as missing until Tuesday afternoon. Four game wardens searched the area Tuesday night and several more wardens joined in the search Wednesday morning. The pair was spotted late Wednesday morning. A game warden was driving near the Canadian border in dense fog with his headlights on when the missing hunters saw him and scrambled down from a ridge to intercept him. The father and son went into the woods with a basic survival kit, but they hadn't eaten much in the two days. Game Warden Gary Allen warned that the Vermont group's agreement not to report fellow hunters as missing could have cost the pair their lives.

Elderly man rescued from snowy field

RANGELEY--During a blowing snowstorm here last week, two police officers rescued an elderly man trapped in a field with one foot pinned under a tire. Franklin County Sheriff Department Cpl. David Simpson said he was patrolling in Rangeley about 7 p.m. on Route 4 when he got a call from a Rangeley police officer to come look at something in a field. The two officers met up, parked their cruisers and saw headlights out in the field. The officer walked to a Jeep wagon and saw a man in his 90s with half his body in the vehicle and the other half out of the vehicle, partly under a wheel. Apparently, Simpson said, the man had become confused in the snowstorm and thought the field was the road and couldn't find his way home, about 500 yards away. The officers got his foot out from under the tire and helped him home.

Mainers to help Russians

PORTLAND--A group of Russians is visiting Maine to learn more about how to balance economic needs with environmental concerns. Members of the group say they are worried that their country's struggle to provide jobs for its citizens will lead to environmental disasters. During the next three weeks, the group will get training from the College of the Atlantic in Bar Harbor and the University of New England in Biddeford. They will then travel on to other states. Their visit here is a first for the Maine Education and Training Export Partnership. The non-profit agency is state-financed and designed to market Maine's expertise.

Couple try skiing to save farm

SCARBOROUGH--James and Nancy Person will turn their 150-acre farm into a cross-country ski area in hopes of making enough money to preserve their woodland, and pay a property tax bill that has risen from $300 to $5,000. The Persons got the idea when a former student of Mr. Person's attended a wedding at the Bethel Inn last winter, according to published reports. The man skied at the inn and told the couple they should set up their own trail system. The Persons had never skied before, but liked the idea. Their working farm will now be one of three in southern Maine to offer recreational skiing.

Get one now, snow blowers going fast

CONCORD, N.H.--New Englanders are bracing for another possible tough winter by stocking up on snow equipment. Snow blowers, and other outdoor snow-handling equipment, are selling at a record rate in many New England stores. The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute has reported a 67 percent increase in national snow blower sales over 1993.

From the Bethel Police log:

Windows smashed on Cross Street

On Sunday, Nov. 6, police investigated a complaint of broken windows at Western Maine Supply Company. Vandals had shattered five windows. Police could not determine what was used to break the windows, according to the log. No damage estimate was available. In other police news last week, Sunday police arrested and charged Arthur P. Madden Jr., 37, of West Bethel for criminal threatening in relation to a domestic complaint.

On Saturday afternoon, Nov. 5, a Flat Road resident told police several juveniles were firing a pellet gun near his house. A police check of the area turned up nothing. Later in the day, police found an apparently intoxicated man lying alongside Route 26. Police woke up the man up, who said he had no way to get home to Locke Mills. The officer gave him a ride to the Greenwood/Bethel town line on Route 26.

On Thursday, Nov. 3, a Middle Intervale Road man reported being bitten by a dog at a Route 2 West Bethel residence. The same day police also warned an elderly man, without a driver's license, to stop driving his car into the village.

On Wednesday, Nov. 2, police helped with traffic control on Paradise Road, where downed wires were blocking part of the road.

VISITING NATIONAL COMMANDER--American Legion National Commander William M. Detweiler of New Orleans, La. spoke Saturday morning at a breakfast in his honor at the Bethel Mundt-Allen American Legion Post. Detweiler was also lauded at a banquet at the Locke Mills Jackson-Silver Post on Friday evening. Detweiler served in the U.S. Army Intelligence Corps from 1963-66. The commander spoke to both groups on the Legion's efforts to rid what Legionnaires feel is anti-American bias from the Smithsonian Institution's display of the Enola Gay, the American B-29 that dropped history's first atomic bomb on the city of Hiroshima in 1945.

Fire

The only things left standing after the fire were two charred walls of the main house.

The fire started in the barn/shed section of the attached buildings. A state fire marshal was on the scene Thursday, Seames said, but no determination of how the blaze began has been reached.

The three causes discussed, Seames said, was the possibility of a lightning strike, an electrical wiring problem or the "human element."

"We haven't pinned it down yet," he said. "There's no reason to suspect any of these three things, but we haven't ruled them out either. It's still under investigation."

Seames is asking anyone who drove by the blaze before firemen were on the scene -- between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. -- to call him or leave a message with the dispatcher at the Oxford County Sheriff's Office.

The farm was known locally as the old Silva Place. Allan Timm had formerly lived there, but he now resides in his home across the street. His mother, Rosa, stayed in the house during visits to the area, Timm said.

Central Maine Power was called to the scene to disconnect the power supply. Tri-town rescue also stood by. There were no serious injuries, Seames said. One firefighter injured his ankle, the chief said, but did not require medical treatment.

According to an analysis prepared by Market Decisions, a Bethel Station consultant, during the five-year period the town would make up in direct and indirect financial benefits an amount equivalent to 90 percent of the full property tax increase.

After five years the TIF would cease, and the town would receive normal property tax payments.

The Market Decisions analysis claims that over a 29-year period the town would benefit by $700,000, because the revenue stream from the speeded-up project would more than make up for the 10 percent net loss in tax revenues for the first five years of the project.

"The logic is that we're better off losing a little tax money to TIF than losing a lot of tax money to a delay," Henley said.

More meetings, another vote

The selectmen agreed to put the matter to town voters, but only after at least two informational meetings and a public hearing.

But they were skeptical the town would be receptive, even if voters were convinced that the deal made bottom-line sense.

"A $25-million project and it's going to be held up by $300,000?" said Rick Whitney.

And Town Clerk Merton Brown, an outspoken Bethel Station supporter, told Merrill, "It appears to me we should have heard about this a long while ago. It's going to be a very tough sell."

Merrill said TIFs had been explored early in the planning process, but dismissed because they came with too many regulatory strings.

But recent rule changes have simplified the TIF process and given towns many more options in setting up financial packages, he said, and more up-front money was now needed for the project because of the unanticipated delay in the federal grant process.

The selectmen have tentatively set two informational meetings on the proposed TIF, one for Dec. 12, a second sometime in late January. A public hearing on the TIF will be held on Jan. 30, and a final referendum vote on Feb. 14 -- the anniversary of the vote on the original Bethel Station land swap.

YMCA programs coming to CPS

By WENDY HANSCOM

Don't expect a swimming pool anytime soon, but the YMCA is taking a dip in the Bethel area.

The Oxford Hills YMCA plans to begin after-school programs this month at the Crescent Park School. If the programs are successful, the Y may expand in this area, offering courses at SAD-44's other two elementary schools or activities for older students, according to CPS principal David Murphy.

"We can offer kids basically anything that any citizen in town would like to teach as long as we can draw enough students to cover the expense of the program," Murphy said.

Karen Christensen-Knowles, executive director of the Oxford Hills YMCA, said she's lined up a couple of courses -- one on producing a student newspaper and the other on holiday cooking with the family -- and has several other activities pending. Other projects could include after-school daycare, game and hobby clubs, and a variety of recreational activities, she said.

Course instructors will be hired by the YMCA and will receive a modest stipend. A few classes will be offered this year, Christensen-Knowles said, and several more should be ready for after the Christmas break. More information on the courses will be publicized as it becomes available, she said.

The Y also hopes to hire a local person to coordinate the CPS/YMCA partnership, she said. "I want to hear from Bethel citizens and parents of CPS students about what they want in the community," Christensen-Knowles said. "If there's a class or a program people think children would enjoy we'd love to hear it. We want to work with local people. The opportunities are limitless."

People interested in after school day care for CPS students should get involved now, Murphy said.

A homework helpers class could be set up, he said, or a regular daycare program with various activities to keep students busy until their parents get out of work.

"I'd like to see kids busy here from the time they get dropped off in the morning until their parents get here at 5 p.m.," Murphy said. "We're hoping that once we get established that we can branch out to Andover and Woodstock, with the local coordinator getting programs started in those areas."

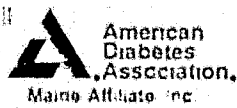

Bringing the YMCA to town is part of Murphy's plan to open the new school building up to the community, he said.

"We promised this would be a community school and that's what's happened," he said. "This building needs to be going all the time. People paid a lot of money for this school and I want it to get used all the time. I want people to feel good about the tax money they're paying for this school."

Anyone interested in proposing a YMCA course, or who wants to comment on a program they'd like to see, can contact Christensen-Knowles at 743-7184.

Fall brings sunny skies but barren ski slopes

By WENDY HANSKOM

Unless you're a skier, you've probably been delighted with this fall's weather.

October 1994 was the fifth sunniest in 101 years, according to the National Weather Service in Portland. The warm, dry days were almost an adequate payoff for those 40-below-zero nights last winter.

The average temperature last month was only one degree higher than normal, but the days were filled with the most sunshine since 1947.

Skiway opening this week?

It certainly has not been ideal snowmaking weather. Sunday River announced on Oct. 11 that it would open for the season, but later that same day warm weather forced a delay in opening day.

As of this Tuesday, nearly a month later, Sunday River was still not open, but the skiway's snow-makers were at work as temperatures allowed, according to spokesman Skip King, and with luck the slopes would be open by the weekend.

Warm but few fires

The warm, sunny fall gave state firefighters a few headaches, but scattered light showers kept the woods wet enough to avoid the huge fires that raged throughout the state in 1947.

"We had a record amount of sunshine," said Art Lester of the weather service. "We were just as sunny as 1947, but not nearly so fiery. The storm last week brought more than two inches of rain to Western Maine, so we should be out of the woods on that one for now."

High winds cause problems

The weather turned a little more winter-like last week, as strong winds blew into the region.

Spotty power outages occurred all over Western Maine, according to a Central Power Company spokesman.

About 6,000 customers in the Lewiston/Auburn area were without power last Wednesday for part of the evening, as were residents of the Minot, Paris, Canton, Rumford, Weld and Turner areas.

Several fire departments in Oxford County were also called out to extinguish small power-line fires.

Locally there were no reports of extended outages, but firefighters from Greenwood, West Paris and Woodstock battled a wind-driven structure fire on the Richardson Hollow Road (see related story).

people work for us. In 15 years, we've even had two generations of families work here."

"It kind of neat to think that some kids don't even remember when there wasn't the Only Place," Varo said.

Lewis and Varo agreed that local support was the key to their business success.

"The locals have been real supportive of us, Lewis said. "When we opened up, Sunday River wasn't what it is now. We opened up for the locals. We had some tourist trade in the summer, but if it wasn't for the locals we wouldn't have survived. We'll miss the people we've been seeing for years."

Lewis and Varo won't be leaving the area. They're going to try new pursuits, but something different from the restaurant business.

"This place needs something," Lewis said. "We just don't have any new life to breathe into it. It needs some new energy. Restaurants are like a kid that grows up and never moves out. It's been good to us, but it's time to do something else."

"nightclub" experience, then the sound will inevitably exceed the town's noise-level limits, Faulkner claimed.

But selectman Dutch Dresser expressed some skepticism regarding Faulkner's willingness to work toward a compromise solution.

"You were indicating at one stage that you didn't plan to cooperate," Dresser told Faulkner. "I'd like to see you work together, but I haven't always felt that was everyone's agenda."

But Faulkner didn't see it that way. "I don't think you will find anyone who's been involved in this who feels I haven't been cooperative," he said.

Faulkner did admit to losing his temper at the earlier meeting, and he apologized to the board, "and through the board, to Mrs. Baker."

Following 45 minutes of discussion, the board unanimously approved the license renewal for a nine-month period. The approval stipulates that further renewal is contingent upon Faulkner and Baker progressing toward an agreement that will reduce noise level complaints.

Congratulations to Andover Native Archer "Junior" Poor who was recently honored by the Maine Historic Preservation Committee at their annual meeting. He was presented an award for his contributions to local history preservation. He has donated many Indian pieces to the Maine State Museum on permanent display for the public benefit of all.

The staff and students of Andover Elementary School would like to explore the idea of creating a new logo for our school and sports teams. Before they initiate a school-wide contest, they are asking if there is anyone in the community who would be opposed to dropping the bulldog as the logo. If they do not receive any phone calls or notes on the subject they plan on going ahead with a contest to create a new school logo. Call 392-4381 to share your opinion. Congratulations to fifth-grader "Student of the Week" for Oct. 24-28, Rhana Woods.

The First Congregational Church reminds all that the annual Country Christmas Fair will be held on Saturday, Nov. 19, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. A luncheon will be served.

Guests from Skowhegan, Lewiston, Rumford, Mexico and Andover attended the event hosted by the couples children, sons Grady and Matthew and daughter Bobbi Godin and family. Maid-of-honor Cynthia Derouche Burk and best man Wayne Morton attended. The Littlehales will celebrate their wedding anniversary on Nov. 8.

Mrs. Minnie Akers recently enjoyed a visit from her daughter Julie Gribbin and granddaughters Brenna and Bridget of Hartsfield, Penn. The family gathered to celebrate Julie's birthday on Saturday.

Former resident Mrs. Ivy Thurston recently relocated from the Somerset Apartments to the Rumford Community Home.

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

There is nothing like being shaken out of one's complacency by realizing it is almost 4 p.m., that "today is Friday!" and Friday is news deadline. Somehow the events of Wednesday evening had rearranged time for me I guess. On that eventful evening I was snug in my little house when I got a call from one of the auxiliary workers of the fire department that Greenwood had a structure fire and was calling for sandwiches and coffee. So, to make a long story short, I headed out into that blustery wind for the fire station to help make sandwiches along with Denise Swan, Maggie Ring, Sally Melville -- and Ronnie Smith, who was there as dispatcher and who already had the coffee started before we got there. Barbara Dunham also sent down some sandwiches via Gilbert. We really were in luck to have Ronnie there, as we were able to send the coffee, sandwiches and some water with him instead of having to take it ourselves. Of course the men promptly enlisted his aid in fighting the fire, and this was the last we saw of him, but even though we stayed quite late they didn't call for any more, so it worked out OK.

I headed home just before midnight, parked my car in the yard under the pine tree, had an argument with myself about the advisability of leaving the car under the pine tree, went out and moved it, came back in and was walking across the kitchen floor when I heard a crack and then a brushing noise and a thump. Sure enough, when I opened the door there was a big pine limb where my car had been and the meter and box along with all the lines were not where they were supposed to be either. The meter and box were resting on my front steps, the cable line had snapped, and the telephone line also had been ripped from the outside wall. Strangely enough the lights and phone still worked. The cable didn't but I had no intentions of watching T.V. at 1 a.m. I called Raymond Seames at the fire station, he put yellow fire tape around everything -- my house looked like a crime scene -- checked out that there was no fire anywhere and then returned to the fire station. He called again at 2:30 a.m. to see if CMP had come because he was headed home but would stay at the fire station if I was concerned. I told him I wasn't and to go home. He apparently did. I prayed for angels to guard the house as I was going to bed, and I did. CMP showed up at 5 p.m. Thursday, the cable man at 6:30 p.m., and I'm hooked up, wired up and back to normal, or at least as normal as it ever gets around here.

My apologies to all of you who were startled, worried or bewildered by the sudden (and thankfully false) demise of Al Lake and Princess. Somehow Lorraine Mills turned into Crystal Lake in the by-line. Ordinarily it wouldn't have mattered much, but the content of the column being what it was it certainly generated some confusion among those not familiar with my style of writing.

At any account, Al Lake was very much alive at the time of that writing and presumably still is at this writing, and certainly Princess was pretty bouncy the last time I saw her, and we'd all like to keep it that way.

Monday, I visited my sister-in-laws, Mary Mills and Marolyn Mills at their home in North Norway. Marolyn was not there long as she took her granddaughter, Shawnee Newell, to a Halloween party. Shawnee was a living Raggedy-Ann and bore an uncanny resemblance to the doll. I told her it must be nice to have a talented grandmother who could make such nice costumes, and she agreed. Mary and I had a nice long visit and I enjoyed the antics of their new dog, a ish-zu, or some such unpronounceable, unspellable name. Brother-in-law Don had gone hunting but came back just as I was leaving, so did manage to say, "Hi!"

The Woodstock Historical Society preserves the spirit and traditions of New England. It has a strong sense of the past in this region. Curator Larry Billings has given a piece of glass to the society. The museum has a good collection of glass and china. The society notes it has many New England authors: Hawthorne, Emerson, Thoreau, Longfellow, Frost, Robinson, Milloy, Holmes, Lowell, Whittier, etc. The society has quite a few antiques which make ideal museum exhibits. Members and visitors alike seem to enjoy them. The next meeting of the society will be Saturday, Nov. 12, at 7 p.m.

Judith Grover Tent 17 will meet on Nov. 14 for a regular meeting and nomination of officers. Beatrice Farnum and Alice Hoyt are on refreshments.

Every Tuesday is Bryant Pond hour on Channel IV T.V. at 4 p.m. There will be a Good News Club at the Annex of the Bryant Pond Baptist Church on Thursday, Nov. 10, 6 to 7:15 p.m. All children (school age) are invited to attend. Miss Joyce Forsyth, director of Western Maine Child Evangelism Fellowship, will be the leader.

The Woodstock Extension will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the Town Annex at 10:30 a.m. The program will be Freezer Paper Appliques -- leaders -- Kay, June and Barbara. Bring a brown bag lunch.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hathaway have been Victor Hathaway, Phyllis and Reynold Jordan, Rey Jordan Jr., and Debbie Millett.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Things have been kind of quiet this past week in the town of Stoneham.

Fred Morse and family from Massachusetts were at their camp at Meadow Brook over the weekend.

Wilda Wallace has employment at a nursing home in Fryeburg.

Eric Nelson was home from college, in Massachusetts, this past weekend and visited his parents and friends here in Stoneham.

Charles and Ellery Lawrence have been sawing wood for Albert Nelson Sr.

We had 16 trick or treaters on Monday night. The kids all looked good in their various costumes. Some were quite nice and some were scary. It was a fun evening for them, and they got plenty of treats. Now -- what to do with the leftovers? I have them covered over with a cloth so I won't see them and be tempted, but they will have to go sooner or later. Maybe the Opa will hide them!

On Sunday night, Matthew Nelson had 11 guests at a Halloween party in his scary, haunted basement house. All had a good time, and on Nov. 1st he celebrated his 11th birthday at the home of his grandparents, with nine family members for a harvest supper, pizza, birthday cake and ice cream, etc.

Mrs. Hazel "Brooks" Peterson from Cranberry Isles has been visiting with her daughter and husband, Kitty and Dale Nelson and family this past week, also friend Louise Miller.

Dr. Eddie Prien and friend Jack Towle from Framingham, Mass., were one of the lucky hunters and bagged a nice buck on Tuesday. Two others have been tagged here so far, Skip Durant and Gene McAlister. Happy hunting, fellers, but please be careful in the woods!

On Sunday, Oct. 30, Albert Nelson Jr. and Frank Farrington left for North Carolina on business. They expect to be home by Wednesday night.

On Sunday, a surprise 30th anniversary party for Charlie and Arlene Merrill was held at the V.F.W. Hall in Harrison, with about 200 people attending. There was a well-organized program of songs, video pictures of the couple's earlier days, refreshments, etc. Eleanor and Nate Smith and several more from town attended this happy occasion.

A benefit supper is being planned by the Lion's Club of Lovell, to be held at the Kezar Lake Grange Hall in North Lovell on Saturday, Nov. 19. This is for Bud and Betsy Wilson. Betsy is still in the hospital at the Maine Medical Center in Portland and is gaining slowly. Supper will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. -- $5 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Two places which I have so often thought about came to mind this week. The first was the "Day Farm" on Curtis Hill. I was there a short time ago. The other place was a trip over Rowe Hill. This was brought to my mind because of two people who live there and recently called on me. I wrote about both in my book, "Pond Reflections." Rowe Hill in the autumn of 1969, when Fay, Ruth and I walked the road. The Day Farm always brings memories. I wrote about that in 1979. I have no regrets about that and the days when I was young. Since there has been a change in ways of life, which has rendered extinct the hammock, harness shop, wagon, sleigh, parlor organ and kerosene lamp. It reminds us in vivid detail that the present isn't all there is. The past exists and what now so overpoweringly seems all there is, will surely someday become the past.

In regard to Rowe Hill, I recall the lazy little streams, little pools with lush ferns, golden laces of fragile beauty among the turning leaves.

What lovely walks we took but now it's just a memory. So many, many trails we traveled and so many mountains we climbed. I loved it all!

As I went to the garage today, I was greeted by Red, the squirrel. I thought of how Shakespeare described him, "What a spendthrift is he of his tongue." He stamped his feet and flicked his tail, chattered, barked and sputtered. I wondered why he was carrying on so, then I saw a few butternuts in a can. He had claimed them. They were old and had been there for a long time. I had removed the cover and he thought that he was having a feast. At some time I had collected them from the old butternut tree on the farm hill. These nuts are rather long, cylindrical in shape, covered with sticky hairs and are produced in drooping clusters.

When I went for the mail, I stopped to listen and sensed the surrounding silence. Then two blue jays on a stump, feathers fluffed, were pompous and scolding.

Little waves seemed to run toward me at the shore, while the mountains across from me looked cold and serene. In the center, the pond was black, blue-black. I looked under the hemlocks and the under branches looked like soft lacy skirts.

I took the longer way home. "It is good to be in such a place on such a day..."

Milton Inman is at his camp for a week of hunting, and Eleanor is spending the week with her sister.

The collie dog of Leonas Holt has been in a veterinary hospital in Brunswick for a week but came home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cogswell, Freeport, visited her mother, Rena Curtis, one day last week.

Zilpha DiArenzo is recovering well. Her daughter Louise has been with her several weeks, but has returned to her home in Pennsylvania, and daughter Jane has been with her the last week.

Witches and ghosts and many other interesting Halloween "trick and treaters" were out on Monday evening.

Members of the Newry Mothers' Club are reminded that the meeting is Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m., Town Building, with Olive Anderson and Gil Seeley in charge of snacks. Also, there will be a bingo game to raise money, which is very much needed because the "coffer" is almost bare. Please bring "wrapped-up" prizes for the winners.

It looks like the Lowells were very busy recently. They were in Buckfield on Wednesday to attend Frank's 94-year-old aunt's funeral.

And Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen of Andover were Thursday visitors at their home. Sunday callers were Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Morey of Locke Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cooper and daughter of Buckfield. On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. James Worthley of Siron came to visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hadfield of Fairhaven, Mass., spent a few days last week at their place on the Branch Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Barry and son Joe of Marston Mills, Mass., were weekend guests of Mrs. Barry's mother, Irene Hadfield, on the Branch Road.

Veterans Day on the 11th...remember those who sacrificed for our freedom. "Let us do or die...To the Valiant, actions speak alone...Theirs not to make reply, Theirs not to reason why, Theirs but to do and die!"

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Olive Anderson, Doris Parent, Irene Hadfield, Bea Lowell and Sylvia Wight, all of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, one day last week.

On the overall scores Betsy was high on the triples, but there was a hassle for the singles...The "Lefties" fought for first place on the singles with Karlene's 102 in the first string, then Gil tied with Betsy with a 102 string in the second -- what do you think of that? Of the "Righties," Bea was high on the triples, but Irene was high on the singles, beating Doris by one pin and Bea closed behind by one pin also. Betsy had three spares, Karlene at four spares, Gil had two spares and one strike, Sylvia had two spares, Doris had one spare and Irene had one spare.

Gertrude Hutchins and Florence Hall went on the bus to Rumford on Wednesday.

Louis Hall took Florence Hall shopping on Monday.

Gertrude Hutchins had lunch at school on Thursday.

The winter birds are beginning to come to our feeders at the Manor.

Nephew Herschel Hall, Ashburnham, Mass., called on Florence one evening recently.

Florence Hall enjoyed the talk by Ernest Klassen at the Calvary Congregational Church Oct. 29.

Many trick or treaters called at the Manor Halloween night.

School children paraded at the Manor Monday morning wearing many neat costumes.

Thought of the day: If you are going to get in over your head it might be a good idea to first learn to swim.

I'm nursing a cold this week so news will be brief. Richard Wing is also home with a cold. They are real miserable and don't get the sympathy they deserve.

What a rain we had the other night! Many homes lost their power and the scanner was busy reporting fires everywhere. The wind came along with the rain and probably had a lot to do with the chimney fires.

There have been many hunters on our road this week. Many have gotten their deer. The lucky hunters from our area are Charlie Lowe, Lisa Mack, Gordon "Yogi" Dillingham, Donald "Tucky" Jackson, Jerrold Mason and Randy Winslow.

We had about 30 trick or treaters on Halloween. A little more than usual maybe because it was such a warm night. It's always enjoyable to see the costumes and see the children.

Richard Wing went and got Sarah Hart at Oxford Hills High School Thursday. The nurse called and said she was sick; she is our granddaughter.

My sister and husband, Evelyn and James Dunn from Campton, N.H., stopped by Saturday for a visit. They will be heading for California soon to spend the winter with their daughter Patrice.

There are many persons who have birthdays in November, namely: Joan Poland, Sandra Monzo, Diana Poland, Perry and Anna Ryerson, Lorena Wilson, Isabel Brown, Faith Verrill, Jerod Verrill, Dale Hadley, Donald Mason, Sr., Danny Brown and Ossie Hart. Happy birthday to you all.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society reports that the society encourages people to learn about antiques. Mr. Billings has given some jewelry and a tin to the museum. Special thanks to Annela Burnham and Ruth Cox for their efforts in fundraising. The society collects antiques and other historic artifacts. It also has many books and materials to use for research.

I know you didn't forget to vote Tuesday. Very important.

The annual Fall Craft and Food Sale at Goodwill Hall of the Universalist Church will be held on Saturday, Nov. 12, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. This is the usual fall sale in conjunction with the annual Chicken Pie Supper to be on Nov. 17. Along with the food and crafts we will have some nice fancy work. There will be muffins, corn chowder, salmon chowder, sandwiches, coffee or tea.

Then on Thursday, Nov. 17, at 5:30 p.m. the first setting of the annual Chicken Pie Supper will be served at Goodwill Hall. Tickets will go on sale at 4:30 for $5 and $2.50.

Pre-school Craft and Story Hour is being held every Wednesday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the West Paris Library. Children are to be accompanied by an adult.

Vance and Connie Bacon were recently in Fairfax, Vt., to visit their daughter and family, Kathy and Bob Bessette, Emily, Marc and Timothy.

The "Hunters" and Family Breakfast held last Saturday to benefit the West Paris Historical Society was very successful.

Hunting in Albany with Milton Inman this week from town are Vance Bacon, Joe Perham, Gregg Inman and Vernon Inman.

Much sympathy is extended to the family of Gladys Ellingwood, who passed away last week.

On Saturday, Alison Chapman's wedding reception was held at The Maine House in Bryant Pond. Alison married Blaine Dry in September, and they were glad to have their families around for the reception. Alison's sister Sarah spoke, as did her father, Alan, and Blaine's father. There were many guests and lots of good food.

Also on Saturday, my friend Laura took me to Pizza Hut as my birthday present. We went to Freeport as well, and to the new Wal-Mart in Oxford. It was a fun time.

The days are getting shorter now that we've set the clocks back. It is also getting colder, which means that winter is on its way. For some, this is bad news; others enjoy this season most of all. As for me, I think it's as somewhere in the middle! That's it from North Woodstock this week.

Howdy, folks. Today is Halloween, and if no hobgoblins keep me from it I will write up my news of our doings once more.

Peggy has gone to do her card work at the Rite Aid Drug Stores in South Paris and Bridgton, as she does each Monday and Friday morning.

Last Monday, while she was gone, I worked at repairing the roof of one of the outbuildings here, as it has been leaking when it rained. I had to put on some new roofing and use roof coating on part of it. Hopefully, I helped it some.

Last Tuesday was the day for people to get their flu shot at West Paris Grange Hall, and a lot of people took advantage of the opportunity to get theirs.

Peggy did some baking in the morning, including some muffins to take to West Paris Grange, and when the time came she went up to help Bertha Benoit what she could. Bertha had organized the clinic and certainly deserves a big thank-you for doing so. The clinic was serviced by Bethel Area Health Center and was really successful, as 94 people received their flu shots. Others had to be turned away, as the doctor ran out of the flu serum.

Wednesday forenoon, we went to West Bethel to the home of Jim and Mary Merrill, to deliver some molasses cookies that Peggy had made for them and to find out how her great-granddaughter Kayla, not quite two years old, was doing after having broken one leg near her hip. She is in a body cast from above her waist down to her ankles. She had been very active before breaking her leg and to be in a cast has been very hard on her and her parents. However, both Kayla and her parents seem to be gradually adjusting to it all. Grandmother Loretta has cared for the younger baby much of the time to help out.

Peggy and I were chosen as delegates to represent Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond and Oxford Pomona #2. After lunch on Wednesday, we started getting things packed up and in the car in preparation for attending the banquet and helping with the program that follows the banquet on Wednesday evening prior to the Maine State Grange session starting on Thursday morning at Spare Time Recreation in Lewiston. Bertha Benoit from West Paris and Marion Bennett from South Paris both attended the banquet with us and Bertha helped us with our part in the program.

We were quite disappointed with the banquet. Many items were well prepared, but they had green beans and carrots as vegetables and neither of them had been cooked nearly as long as they should have been. If I'm going to eat vegetables that are raw, I prefer that they not be warmed up. People enjoyed other items on the menu, but much of the vegetables went back with the plates.

The Maine State Grange session got into full swing on Thursday morning. We had to go early to pick up our programs and material to work with. We picked up Marion Bennett each morning except Saturday, and she attended the session with us. We took our lunch with us each day but then ate supper at some restaurant.

Our National Grange representative at the State Grange session this year was Martha McKoskey, chaplain of the National Grange and master of the West Virginia State Grange. She was accompanied by her husband George, who is a past master of West Virginia State Grange. Martha addressed the Maine State Grange Thursday evening, and we found her to be a good talker, but an interesting one.

After sister McKoskey had addressed the assembly, the fifth or Pomona degree was conferred on a few candidates by Lincoln Pomona Grange. As master of Oxford Pomona, I am always interested in comparing one Pomona against another when degree work is being done. Lincoln Pomona did an excellent job with the degree work and we enjoyed it very much.

Friday was the second day of the State Grange session and we were right there to witness the whole bit. Lots of business was taken care of, both on Thursday and Friday. When we go as delegates, we are there at every session that is held.

Friday evening, the State Grange officers conferred the sixth degree on a total of 66 candidates. The degree work was beautifully done and the Rose Drill, that is part of the degree, was done by Bayside Grange of Ellsworth, and they deserved a blue ribbon for excellence. The Rose Drill was beautiful to watch.

Saturday was the final day of the State Grange session and was the day for the Youth and Junior Granges to show what they could do. Officers of the Youth Grange came dressed in all sorts of outfits.

They opened the State Grange on Saturday and did drill work. It was very interesting to watch. They did other program acts to entertain us. I'm always interested to see what young people can do.

Saturday afternoon, we were entertained by the Junior Grange, which is made up of members from five to 14 years of age. It is quite amazing what the Junior Grange leaders can accomplish with these little ones.

Telstar to present three-act comedy

Telstar High School Drama Club will present a fall comedy, "A Bad Year for Tomatoes," at the Helen Berry Auditorium Thursday-Saturday, Nov. 17-19 at 7:30 p.m.

The play, written by John Patrick and directed by Bunny Latham, is about Myra Marlowe, a Hollywood Star since the age of two. She tires of her life in show business and decides she'd like a change. She finds a small place in Beaver Haven, Vt., where she settles down to become a normal person, write her memoirs and grow tomatoes. She handles the protests and persuasions of her agent. But when the locals become bothersome, Myra creates a deranged sister in order to scare them away. This works fine until Piney falls in love with her pretend sister. Myra tells everyone she sent her sister off to Boston but the townspeople smell murder and call the sheriff.

The cast includes Jessie Coolidge as Myra the movie star; Andy Dennis as Tom the agent; Becky Chandler as Cora, Rachel Stowell as Reba, Kate Nickerson as Willa Mae, Tim Nickerson as Piney, all four neighbors in Beaver Haven; and Peter Miserocchi as the sheriff.

The stage crew includes Lydia Grover as assistant director, Crystal Aylward and Josh Smith on lights, Calin Kavanagh as stage manager, and Martha Grover and Amy Hale as stage hands.

The performance is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17-19 at Telstar auditorium. Tickets cost $3 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens, and $6 for a family pass. All profits for the production will go toward new stage lights for the auditorium.
